I have a dream

I have a dream, that everyone will be treated the same no matter their gender
That little girls can grow up to be footballers without people making sexist comments
And that little boys can grow up to be a nurse without embarrassment

I have a dream, that everyone will pay their taxes
That hospitals will have the right equipment and will not have to worry about funding
And that poor people won't have to worry about putting food on their table

I have a dream, that people won't be making improvised houses on the streets
They will have warm food every day
And they have a proper roof over their head

I have a dream, that the people of the earth will breath clean air once again
That the earth will be released from its warm bonds and live once again
And that the marean life will live a life without plastic

I have a dream, that one day there will be a cure for coronavirus
That the weight will be lifted off the NHS's shoulders
And that children and grandparents will reunite again

I have a dream, that those children living in refugee camps to escape the bloodshed of war
That they will live a life in their home countries
And that they will live in peace and tranquility

These are my dreams, this is our future
It isn't already decided
It changes depending on the actions you make good or bad
