I have a dream

I have a dream that all countries live in peace and harmony like a tranquil beach.
That no innocent blood will be shed like a deathly crimson sheet,
That deafening gun shots will no longer be heard by terrified victims,
That no harmless humans will be horrifically hurt.

I have a dream everyone will live a healthy and wholesome life,
That no one will painfully suffer from vicious viruses and deadly diseases,
That disabilities will no longer exist.
That everyone's body is as healthy as a flourishing athlete.

I have a dream that the Earth is taken care of like a delicate flower,
That the sky is not suffocated or choking on toxic fumes,
That the waters covering the earth are like sparkling clear glass,
That the world is no longer a rubbish dump filled to the brim.

I have a dream that the poor will have comfortable, cosy houses,
That no one will be on the grimy, filthy streets, covered in foul-smelling clothes,
That clean, fresh water will pour down every dehydrated, dry mouth,
That no one will have starving stomachs like a deflated balloon,

I have a dream that black and white are balanced on the scales,
That no one will be hurt because of the colour of their skin,
That all human beings are regarded the same, black or white it does not matter,
That every understands that black lives matter.

I have a dream,
They have a dream
We need all these dreams to happen.
