I have a dream, that the contaminated waters of our planet would one day be speckless and pristine.
That there would be more fish and sea creatures and they wouldn’t have to eat the plastic.
People would be healthier by eating healthy fish, and they would be happier that the beach they are sitting on is clean.
We would swim in seas that were free from plastic and toxic waste.

I have a dream, that there will be no pollution in the air we breathe.
People would be healthier and have more energy.
Cars would be electric, and they wouldn’t pollute the air.
Plants would have a greener colour, and the fruits and vegetables that we eat would be cleaner and healthier.

I have a dream that we would stop cutting down rainforests.
They give us more air to breathe with.
If the greenhouse effect was mitigated, the Earth's climate would be more stable.
Maintaining adequate humidity and mitigating sudden temperature changes will provide prevention from climate disasters.
This would mean that habitats for many plants and animals wouldn’t get destroyed.

I have a dream, that we would have medicines and vaccines for every disease and illness.
People with a disease would have bigger chances of surviving, and there would be more children that are born healthy.
There would be fewer epidemics, but if this happened, then people would have a better sense of security.
In this world, there would be less pain and suffering.

I have a dream, that we could eat healthy, fresh food that was free from preservatives and antibiotics.
Then, people would be healthy and fit, not overweight.

There would be tasty fruits and vegetables without pesticides, from which we would make shakes and juices.
Restaurants would serve food with no taste enhancers, dyes and artificial thickeners.
We would eat healthy meat, free from antibiotics.

I have a dream, that there would be no homeless and moneyless people. All the people on Earth would be able to buy food and won't be starving of hunger.
Also, less people hungry and poor, would mean less suffering and diseases.
I really hope that one day everyone would have enough money to buy a house, and their children would be able to go to school.
Then, children would be happy and healthy, even in the countries of Africa.

-Kacper Durek