I HAVE A DREAM

I have a dream that, violence will be something of the past, people are kind and cruelty is no more.
That the streets will be harmless to all humankind.
That shopkeepers, home owners feel safe and secure.
That fists and weapons are never used, arguments settled with words not roughness.
No wars or conflict, no sorrow or pain, no harm inflicted on others in rage.
That adults and children look out for each other.
That people respect the police and those in charge
That there is peace on earth and the world is a happier, kinder place to live.
